| VITICULTURE / HARVEST | 2014 started with a warm, wet winter, followed by a warm spring and early vine growth. A challenging year characterized by strong temperature variations and abundant rainfalls, alternating with windy days and from time to time below average temperatures. The wet and warm climate generated vigorous vegetative growth, which meant a complicated management for the growers. Picking started around mid September and lasted throughout October. The work of the winemakers carried out in the months prior to the harvest, it has been crucial to the success in achieving the quality standards of a particular vintage. |
